Garret Guibord practice focuses on the defense of insurance companies, including the handling of first and third-party lawsuits and general liability claims.

He returned to Michigan after working with a personal injury firm in Chicago where he obtained valuable experience in advocating for clients.

He has a unique understanding of the jury selection process, having previously participated in the Michigan State University Jury Selection Fellowship, where he evaluated several cases and the impact of racial bias in jury selection. In fact, his work as a fellow in the program resulted in the overturning of several unlawful criminal convictions.
